Program Overview

Discover Bentley is a graduate school exploration program open to juniors, seniors and recent graduates who identify as Black, Latinx, Asian-American or Native American. Selected participants are invited to campus to spend three days exploring what Bentley has to offer through class visits, conversations with current graduate students and faculty, networking with corporate partners, and getting an introduction to the admission and financial aid process. There is no cost to apply or attend; transportation, housing and meals are provided for participants accepted to the program.

The resources Bentley provides to their business students are unbelievable. From the technological classrooms to the opportunity to become Bloomberg certified, it was a great feeling to be at a 'real' business school. A business school that integrates actual work into the classroom, offers global opportunities, and experiential learning.
